

Husband:

"Everyone needs some confusion in their lives. Everyone needs anger. Without it, we wouldn't be sane." Josh said. "Believe me, I wouldn't be here if it wasn't for confusion and anger. Though it hurt, I needed it. That's how I met you, James. Now I am up here with you, announcing to the world that I love you. I'm glad for every heart break, for every confusing and angry moment because it lead to this... our wedding day." He wiped away the tears that ran down his cheek. "I love you, and I will always love you. I'm glad to be called your husband." Everyone dabbed at the tears as Josh looked into those eyes, those glorious green eyes and cried tears of joy. "I told myself I wouldn't cry!" He laughed through the tears.

"Josh," James began. He dabbed his cheeks before continuing. "I never though I would be here today with you. I though I would be with someone I knew from Mississippi, some girl I knew from first grade." He chuckled through the tears. "I'm glad, though, that I'm here with you because I am with my true love. I love you," He took a deep breath and looked up into Josh's eyes, smiling. "And will always be there for you. I am proud to be your soul mate, your true love, your husband."

Chris rubbed Joey's back as he too started to cry. Ever since James proposed to Josh a few months earlier, the tears have yet to stop falling.

"Do you, Joshua Scott Chasez, take James Lance Bass to be your lawfully wedded husband, in sickness and in health, till death do you part?"

"Death will never part us. I do." Josh said. James grinned.

"And do you, James Lance Bass, take Joshua Scott Chasez to be your lawfully wedded husband, in sickness and in health, till death do you part?"

"For all eternity." James never removed his eyes from the man he loved.

"I now pronounce you... I pronounce you... uh... oh forget it. You might as well kiss now." Everyone laughed through tears as James kissed Josh, who laced his fingers with James's.

"I was hoping this would be a happy ending!" Chris cried as he blew his nose into the tissue Justin handed him. He was the only one holding back the tears, that is, until he watched his friends, band mates, and brothers walking down the aisle hand in hand. He cried so loudly that every one looked at him.

"What? I get so emotional at weddings. I can't help it!" Chris patted his back as James and Josh kissed before exiting the church as a married couple.

THE END!